Senate President Helene Ossipov

President Crow's announcement of the new ASU charter is a great time for each of us to reflect, not only on what we are doing to pursue our own goals, but to ask ourselves, how do these goals align with the vision for Arizona State University? We've had many successes, and I commend each of you; at the same time, I challenge all of us to do more. As a transformative constituency within the university, faculty members have an opportunity to not only develop master learners, but to also leverage our collective wisdom so that we might better participate in the fulfillment of the ASU charter.

ASU Charter

ASU is a comprehensive public research university, measured not by whom we exclude, but rather by whom we include and how they succeed; advancing research and discovery of public value; and assuming fundamental responsibility for the economic, social, cultural and overall health of the communities it serves.

The University Senate at Work

The University Senate recently hosted the Arizona Board of Regents for a breakfast meeting that involved conversation and discussion around how a faculty member respects and engages the different beliefs of that faculty member's students. Also, to kick off the discussion, the Senate produced a video that demonstrates how faculty members work with students of all belief systems as they pursue the ASU Design Aspirations.
